Groundbreaking for Green Line Station Draws Dignitaries Here on Windy Day

by Sandra Barnes

The chill wind whipped the flags flanking the stage. The sun blazed. Greenbelt's mayor declared that "the wind was blowing and going our way." It was an historic occasion—October 7, 1989, the groundbreaking for the long-awaited, eagerly anticipated Metro Green line—terminus, Greenbelt, MD. Well, the line won't open until late 1993, 23 years after a compact with the State of Maryland and Metro to build it. But the flags were flying, the Prince Georges Police Pipe Band played, and a host of public officials assured the assembled crowd of 100 persons that Metro was on its way to Greenbelt.

County Executive Parris Glendening welcomed the dignitaries and guests. He noted that the station would be located south of the Beltway along the east side of the CSXT railroad. Local access would be via Cherrywood Lane, which the county is improving at a cost of $9. million. Regional access to the station will be via new "fixover" Beltway ramps that are under construction now. An underground passageway will provide pedestrian access beneath the railroad tracks to the future Greenbelt MARC commuter rail station to be built just south of the Metro station.

It is anticipated that the Green Line will add 40,000 riders per day to a system that now handles 500,000 riders per day. Glendening hailed the opening as "the end of a long challenging road" and thanked the many citizens who had worked to move the project ahead through a bevy of protests and lawsuits. Glendening paid tribute to Governor William Donald Schaefer, who did not hesitate to condemn land in College Park when that city's council threatened further delays of the project.

Metro Board Chairman, and Greenbelt's County Councilman, Richard Castaldi beamed happily as he remarked that the opening was "really a thrill for me—the end of long hard effort. . . I want you all back when we open this line," he stated, noting that the ride from Greenbelt to Metro Center will be only 28 minutes. "I was not only born and raised in Greenbelt," Castaldi reminded the crowd, "but my birthday is in October and this (groundbreaking) is a birthday present to me."

Maryland Senator Paul Sarbanes was praised by Glendening for his "crucial help in getting funding." Sarbanes, in turn, praised Maryland's Barbara Mikulski and Congressman Steny Hoyer for their roles. "It's a terrific day for Greenbelt," he commented.

Mikulski called Metro "America's subway" and promised "to do my best for Prince Georges County." She noted that jobs, homes, and accessibility to higher education, as well as transportation, were "what the flag stands for."

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said, "we are now assured that Metro will come to Greenbelt," and the line will not only be used by local residents but will serve those living in East Montgomery County and Howard County as well.

Other speakers included Congressman Hoyer; Maryland Secretary of State, Winfield Kelly; Maryland House of Delegates representative, Charles (Buzz) Ryan; Maryland State Senator Art Dorman speaking for Senator Leo Green (whose daughter was getting married that day); as well as representatives from the Department of Transportation. Candidates Go into High Gear With Forums, Doorknocking

by Elaine Skolnik

Interest is building up among Greenbelters about the upcoming November 7 city council election. As election day draws near, campaign signs are proliferating throughout the city, candidates are door-knocking and four candidates' forums are scheduled. Campaigning in earnest are all five members of the current city council — Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, Mayor Pro-Tem Joseph C. Isaacs and Councilmembers Antoinette M. "Toni" Bram, Edward V. J. Putens and Thomas X. White — along with challengers Roy Dahl, Konrad Herling, Ruth Kastner and Rodney Roberts.

All candidates are expected to state their positions and field questions at various forums. The first face-off, sponsored by Citizens For Greenbelt (CFG), takes place tonight, Thursday, at the Greenbelt Community Church. The church will also be the setting for the Gray Panthers Forum on Saturday, October 14 at 1:30 p.m. Candidates will be on stage again at the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee's forum on Monday, October 23 in the Greenbriar Community Center at 7 p.m. They will also appear at Green Ridge House. (The CFG forum can be viewed on Channel B-10 next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 2 and 7 p.m.)

Some 3,636 eligible Greenbelt voters are currently on the voter registration rolls, a 17% increase over the 1987 total of 3,106. (See chart on page 8). During the past two years' the city's population increased from an estimated 18,943 in 1987 to an estimated 19,729 in 1989. Three precincts showed an increase in voter registration from 1987, in particular in Greenbelt East's Precinct 13, where new development has occurred and where increased traffic and the proposed Sunrise apartment development are concerns. In precinct 13, registration was up by 30%; in precinct 3 by 14% and in precinct 6 by 20%. Registration in Springhill Lake's precinct 8 has decreased by 30% since the 1987 city council elections.

In 1987 there were about 8,940 dwelling units in the city. Today, the city-wide estimate is about 9,232 units - 1,255 condominiums, 631 detached single family homes, 2,540 townhouses and 4,806 apartments.

There will be no referendum questions on the ballot this year. However, voters will again be asked to complete a questionnaire dealing with city programs and services. A complete copy of the questionnaire will be published in a future issue of the News Review and will be available at the polls.

A STUDY IN CONTRASTS

by Helen Webb

The Greenbelt Arts Center has returned to the stage with "Contrasts: A Program of One Act Plays." Two more performances are scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 13 and 14, at 8 p.m., at Capitol College in Laurel.

"Contrasts" is an apt name for the program. The first play, "Found a Peanut" by Donald Margulies, deals with children's acceptance of changes and limits, including the ultimate change and limit, death. Despite the weighty underlying theme of the play, director Alexander Totz gets vital, energetic performances from his cast, whose bodies speak the non-verbal language of children perfectly. The use of masks adds to the play's affect. Especially good performances are turned in by Kerry Duganas Melody, Jeff Binder as Mike, and Greenbelt's Mike Cooney as Jeff.

Unfortunately, the cast of the second play, "Dynatron Systems," is not able to do much with the script's dialogue. The play concerns the last night of a bitter old man, as he harshly and gleefully deals with all the people who have made his life miserable. The trouble is, the supposed bad guys just aren't that unlikeable.

"I'm Herbert," by Robert Anderson, is a welcome contrast to its predecessors. It is a charming conversation between an old couple, played with tender spirit by Bill Fedorshik and Nina Ruth. The couple quarrels and mixes up events past and present; however, director A. C. Mendenhall brings out the joy the couple still gets from life.

The highlight of the evening is "Advice to the Players," a play reaffirming that the only just way to deal with people is as individuals, not as members of groups. The play, directed by Marie Tousignant, is about two black South Africans, who are in Baltimore to perform "Waiting for Godot." They become pawns in a struggle between the South African government, which wants them to perform to improve its image and an anti-apartheid organization which wants them not to perform to register a protest. Neither side cares about the men involved. The play is rather predictable, and playwright Bruce Bonafede's point is almost too obvious; however, extremely strong performances from the entire cast especially Marshall S. Jackson and Carlton O. Ray who portray the actors with energy and feeling, and an ample dose of humor make the play reason enough to attend "Contrasts." Alex Barnes, Jr. makes his debut performance.

GREENBELT ARTS CENTER HOLDS FLEA MARKET

Once again, it's time to return summer items to the attic which has filled up during their absence. If the house feels stuffed, the Greenbelt Arts Center has a solution to the problem. At the Roosevelt Center, Saturday, October 14, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., the Greenbelt Arts Center will sponsor a flea market. The Center is looking for donations, including furniture, white elephant, and other items of interest. For pick-up of donations or other information, call 345-8395.

On the other hand, perhaps there is an empty corner looking for an item-with-a-history to fill it. The Arts Center Flea Market might have just the thing.

Live Poets' Society

Greenbelters Rhea Cohen and James Foy will be joining Ann Raney in a poetry reading to be held at the Montpelier Cultural Arts Center in Laurel. The second of a series of three readings by local poets, the evening will feature Cohen reading from "Time of Two Lights," her recently published chapbook; a small book containing poems, ballads or stories once sold by peddlers called chapmen. This collection won Cohen first place in the 1989 Montpelier Chapbook Competition. James Foy will be reading from the compositions which earned him an honorable mention in the same contest.

The readings will be held on Sunday, October 15 at 3 p.m. and there is no charge. Further information may be obtained by calling 953-1993.

Boxwood Civic Association Plans Neighborhood Party

The Boxwood Civic Association will hold their annual neighborhood pizza party on Sunday, October 22 from 3:30 p.m. until dusk next to the playground on Parcel 7. All residents of Boxwood Village are invited to attend an afternoon of fun, food, and friends. For more information please contact David Moran at 345-1429.

Chorale Performs

The University of Maryland Chorale, under the direction of Roger Folstrom, will present its fall concert on Friday, October 20 at 8 p.m. in the Tawes Recital Hall on the College Park Campus. Composers to be featured are Bruckner, Barber, Janquin, Gabriele and Felecciano.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Democratic Club to Hear About Consumer Protection

At the regular meeting of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club on Friday, October 20, the speaker will be Eileen Brandenburg, chief investigator for Prince Georges County Consumer Protection Commission. As a long time investigator, Brandenburg will explain the operation of the department as it serves the citizens of the county. The Prince Georges Commission has an excellent reputation; this presentation should offer members of the audience an unusual opportunity for an inside look at how it has earned that reputation.

Club meetings are held in the Terrace Room of Greenbriar Community Center at 8 p.m. The public is cordially invited. Refreshments will be served.

Phobias Discussed at Lunch

The Greater Washington Society for Clinical Social Workers (GWSCSW) will hold their monthly meeting on Tuesday, October 17 from 12:15 to 1:30 p.m. at the Greenbelt Library. People can bring lunch. GWSCSW meets the third Tuesday of each month at the Greenbelt Library.

The discussion is titled "Phobias and Panic Disorders" and will be presented by Barry Wolfe, Ph.D.

Training Session Scheduled

The Prince Georges County Department of Aging will be holding its new nursing home advocate volunteer training on October 16 through 19 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Collington Life Care Community in Mitchellville, Maryland. If you are interested in volunteering to assist in empowering nursing home residents to address and resolve any concerns they may have please contact Carolyn Mills, Ombudsman Program Coordinator, at 699-2684.

GEAC to Host Candidate Forum

The Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC) will sponsor a Candidates Forum on Monday, October 23, at 7 p.m. The program, to be held at the Greenbriar Community Building Terrace Room, will give citizens an opportunity to hear City Council candidates address topics of interest to Greenbelt East and the city at large. All Greenbelt voters are invited to attend.

Volunteer Fair At Capital Centre

More than 100 human service and health agencies will present their needs for volunteers at information booths at the "People Need People" Volunteer Fair on Oct. 16 from 2-8 p.m. at the Capital Centre. This festival of volunteer opportunities will also feature entertainment, refreshments, door prizes and sports celebrities.

The event was organized in response to President and Mrs. Bush's call for renewal of volunteer efforts by American citizens.

Madam Butterfly at PGCC

Puccini's opera, Madam Butterfly, will be performed in English on November 3 and 5 by Prince Georges Opera, Inc. Performances will be Friday, November 3, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, November 5, at 3 p.m. in the Queen Anne Fine Arts Theatre at Prince George's Community College in Largo, Maryland.

For tickets and info call 864-7326.

REMINDER

This is to remind readers of News Review policy with respect to the printing of campaign and election material. In its last edition preceding an election the newspaper will not publish letters to the editor and similar materials that inject for the first time, highly controversial issues and charges. Last minute introduction of such material without an opportunity for refutation is considered an unfair campaign practice.

The News Review will not print letters of endorsement.

Letters to the editor and other copy on election issues must be submitted by 9:30 p.m. Tuesday evening, so as to give the News Review editorial board sufficient time to review content.

(All display advertising copy must be submitted Monday evenings from 8 to 10 p.m.)

County Women Business Owners Meet Tuesday

The Women Business Owners of Prince Georges County will hold its next meeting Tuesday, October 17 at the Fireside Beef House from noon until 2 p.m. Janice Alman, Ed. D., Pastoral Psychotherapist will discuss the anxiety and stress of owning one's own business and Jane Ostman, Doctor's Hospital, will present a wellness program for women. Our Findings

Since the level of the county property tax rate for Greenbelt residents has been brought up in Mayor Gil Weidenfeld's current campaign flyer, we researched this issue. We want to share our findings with the voters.

In Prince Georges County there are 28 incorporated jurisdictions. In the past the county tax rate for these municipalities was the same as for the nonincorporated jurisdictions, even though the cities provided several services themselves, without using the Prince Georges equivalents. This obviously led to double taxation. For many years the mayor and council of Greenbelt, as well as the other municipalities, have been working to correct this inequity.

When the county recognized the problem, partial relief was granted by providing a tax rebate which was paid to each municipality. The rebate was based on the fact that the county did not maintain municipal streets. Other services performed by the municipalities were ignored. In 1983, with the active support of Greenbelt's State Senator and Delegates of the Maryland General Assembly, a law was passed mandating the county to negotiate a tax differential formula with its municipalities. This led to the tax differential, phased in over the fiscal years 1984/5 and 1985/6. The tax differential is the difference between the county tax rates within municipalities and the tax rate for the nonincorporated jurisdictions. The amount is different for each municipality and is based on the services provided by it. Currently the difference is largest for Laurel (56 cents) and smallest for Seat Pleasant (17 cents). For Greenbelt and four other municipalities it is 51 cents.

To consider the impact of the tax differential for Greenbelt taxpayers, one has to return to the period 1984/6 when the differential was phased in. The amount of the differential was based on the city providing public works and police service and amounted to a total of 47 cents. However, it replaced the above-mentioned tax rebate paid by the county to Greenbelt. Thus the

Why is it that every time some otherwise worthy project comes along it is couched in terms of chopping down some of our remaining forest? Haven't we learned anything from our profligate past? Once again we are presented with a project which is in all respects but one worthy of our support. Like more ballfields, the proposed Senior Co-op Housing project is a good theory. After all, it's like motherhood; we're all for it. Has anybody asked why the only site being considered is one currently occupied by trees?

Of course we value the contribution these people have made to Greenbelt. Of course we hope they will be able to remain living in our midst so that we might continue to benefit from their council. On the other hand, we must realize the enormous contribution made to our lives, our health and the nature of our town by the (unfortunately dwindling) forests and groves that remain of our beloved greenspace.

We must stop thinking of any land with trees on it as surplus, undeveloped or available. We need our senior citizens. We need our trees. There are always alternatives; why aren't we hearing about them?

net impact of the end of double taxation amounted to 39 cents. Unfortunately, this impact was quickly absorbed by new expenditures. Whereas in 1984/5 the dollar amount of individual property taxes was lower than the previous year, already in 1985/6 it had surpassed the pre-tax-differential level, and has been increasing ever since. The continued increase in assessed value and rising city taxes are major factors. And regarding the future: in our letter to the Editor of June 15 we stated that in five years taxes will have increased by 62% of the referendum to convert Center School into a community center passed. Well, it passed.

The above facts and figures regarding the tax differential have been derived from letters written by the Greenbelt City Manager and the Prince Georges County Executive.

Clarification

To the Editor:

This is to take exception to your article on page 7 of the October 5 issue headlined "Curb and Gutter Replacement Planned." . . . I wish to clarify the two issues which have been referred to the Lakeside Civic Association and Woodland Hills Community Association for comment and advice. After the city has received responses, city council will decide on the work to be done.

1. The associations were asked to express preference between replacing the existing rolled curbs with new rolled curbs or flat-faced curbs, and a list of pros and cons was provided.
2. The associations were asked to advise if there was resident interest for sidewalk construction along the streets. At present, sidewalks are not proposed and funds have not been budgeted for this work.

To my knowledge neither association has reached a decision on a response. Persons desiring more information or wishing to express their views should contact their association officers or the city offices.

Recycling Meeting Oct. 16

Greenbriar Community Association is hosting a recycling kickoff meeting on Monday, Oct. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Greenbriar Terrace Room. City, county and local officials will be present to speak on a recycling program for Greenbriar.

Two Important People

Last Saturday's Metro groundbreaking was a happy community get-together. We announced to the region that Greenbelt was going to be officially linked via subway to the District and Virginia, finally! However, in reflecting on the program's speakers, from the Undersecretary of Transportation, Senators Sarbanes and Mikulski and Representative Hoyer, it occurred to me that two important people involved in lobbying these respective parties were not recognized.

Gerry Gough, with Metro's Government Relations Office, and Dee Allison, Senior Transit Administrator for Prince Georges County, worked behind the scenes to coordinate the efforts of four different levels of government (it's hard enough when you're working with only one level of government). This was not an easy task, especially when dealing with a project so immense. We owe Gerry Gough and Dee Allison a great deal.

Konrad Herling.

Bravo! Encore!

To the Editor:

Bravo! The Cultural Arts Center has done the "impossible" again. They were cast out from the Utopia Theater more than a year ago, expected to die. Instead they have persisted and are now producing four outstanding one-act plays in beautiful facilities at Capitol College. The theater is a short drive off Powder Mill Road and has plenty of free parking.

"Advice to the Players" poses a dilemma on how to confront apartheid. "Found a Peanut" portrays the complexity of our relationships, in terms of children playing. "Dynatron Systems" deals with death and integrity. And "I'm Herbert" sparkles with the humor of forgetfulness.

I found all four to be entertaining and well done. They deserve large audiences and there are only two performances left: Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

INDEPENDENT, EXPERIENCED LEADERSHIP FOR COUNCIL

Prior Commitments + Future Needs = Hard Decisions

- Through council actions and citizen bond issue approvals Greenbelt is committed to an ambitious capital improvements program totalling nearly $15 million dollars. Funding will be accomplished by bond financing, city reserves and state, county and federal grants.

• Tom White Supports These Projects:

- POLICE STATION (NEARLY COMPLETE)
- PARKLAND ACQUISITION
- SCHROM HILLS PARK DEVELOPMENT
- GREENBELT LAKE IMPROVEMENTS
- INDOOR POOL
- ROOSEVELT CENTER IMPROVEMENTS
- GREENBELT COMMUNITY CENTER
- PERIMETER TRAIL/PATHWAY SYSTEM
- STREET/SIDEWALK IMPROVEMENTS

- The next council will have to balance available resources and set priorities for additional projects such as: A Public Works Facility addition, Northway Field improvements, Braden Field reconstruction, Attick Park improvements, completion of Roosevelt Center improvements, additional parkland acquisition and other necessary infrastructure needs.

- Greenbelt citizens deserve sound fiscal decisionmaking, prudent planning, participation in setting priorities and practical allocation of resources.

Stop for School Buses!

Maryland state law requires motorists to come to a complete stop at least 20 feet from the rear or front of a school bus in which the red warning lights indicate that students are entering or leaving, and motorists are urged to watch carefully for signs that a bus is preparing to stop.

Many buses of the Prince Georges County Public Schools are equipped with a stop signal arm that extends into the traffic lane to help notify motorists that the bus is stopped for students. More than 500 buses are equipped with the additional eight-light system in which amber lights flash as a warning that the bus is preparing to stop.

In all cases, motorists should proceed cautiously whenever driving behind or along side of a school bus.

Maryland state law requires school buses to stop for all railroad crossings, and motorists should be prepared to stop at these crossings.

Bus safety is a priority of the Prince Georges County Public Schools. If motorists observe a school bus operating in an unsafe manner, they should notify the Department of Transportation at 952-6572.

Hospital Seeks Volunteers

Greenbelt Soccer

The Boys and Girls Club 13 year old team had their first game on Sept. 16 against Kettering, and had their first victory of the season. Despite the fact that it was very wet, the game was played. (This is the team who notoriously practices in the rain). Scott Lube scored twice; one with an assist by Dan Danis, and the other assisted by Sarah Meetre. Then Sarah got a shot and produced a goal of her own. And Mary Renzi scored with an assist by Jenny Meetre, ending the game with a 4-0 shut-out.

This team played in a 16 year old league last spring in Bowie, and had some real tough losses. But they stuck together, practiced all summer (rain or shine, preferably rain) and are back together with a few changes. The teamwork has improved noticeably, as have the individual skills.

Attention Bookworms Library Open Sundays

Greenbelters now have an attractive alternative for turning those long wintry Sunday afternoons to good use. For the first time, the Greenbelt Library, in common with eight other county branches will open from 1 - 5 p.m. on Sundays through May. In the past, the county library system has had branches open on Sundays, but Greenbelt was never included.

The library's newly remodeled facilities include attractive and comfortable areas for study or browsing. Greenbelt's extensive collection of resources includes a wide variety of compact discs, audio tapes, and video cassette tapes. There is a small charge for videos, and other materials are available on free loan.

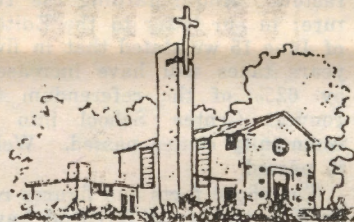

In addition to the loan collection and the reference library, Greenbelt also has available IBM and Apple computers with a wide range of popular software available for use within the library. Software available includes spreadsheets, graphics, typing tutors, word processing and database management packages.

GREENBELT NEWS REVIEW

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

Officer Robert Dowling observed juveniles purchase beer from an adult in the parking lot of the Shell Food Mart on Breezewood Dr. on Sept. 29. As the juveniles left the parking lot in a vehicle, the officer stopped them, placing a 16-year-old under arrest for possessing alcohol. A search then revealed a small baggie of marijuana and 43 rocks of cocaine also in his possession. He was arrested and charged with possession of crack cocaine with intent to distribute, possession of marijuana, drug paraphernalia (rolling papers), and possession of alcohol. He was released to a guardian pending juvenile court action.

After making a traffic stop for a safety equipment violation in the Beltway Plaza parking lot, a passenger got out of the car and fled from the officer, Sgt Doug Sappington, into Berwyn Heights, where he was later apprehended. Investigation revealed the 16-year old had 38 rocks of suspected crack cocaine and a large amount of money which he discarded as he fled. Both he and another juvenile in the car were arrested and charged with possession with intent to distribute cocaine and were incarcerated at Boys Village pending a hearing.

Officer Marie Croisette arrested a 25-year-old nonresident for possession of an open alcoholic container at Candy Cane City. The man was released on a citation pending trial.

Following a traffic violation stop on Sept. 29 by Officer Thomas Moreland on Kenilworth Avenue, a 54-year-old man was arrested for driving on a suspended license. A search of his vehicle produced a loaded .25 caliber semi-automatic hand gun and a knife. He was released pending trial.

A strong-arm robbery was reported at the Curiosity Shop in Greenway Center. A man grabbed an employee from behind and demanded money. He fled on foot toward Greenbelt Road with an undisclosed amount of cash. The suspect is described as black, 30, 6 ft., 230 lbs., brown eyes, and wearing a yellow sweater, blue jeans, a blue baseball cap and white tennis shoes.

A residence in the 7800 block of Somerset Court was burglarized on Oct. 5 between 4 and 8:30 p.m. Entry was gained by breaking out the glass on a sliding door. Various equipment including a computer, television, VCR, and stereo were reported stolen.

Other Thefts

Two juveniles fled from the AMC 6 Movie Theaters concession stand without making an attempt to pay for items. Both were later apprehended and arrested. They were released to their guardians pending action by the juvenile court.

Two breakings and enterings occurred last week. Entry was gained to a residence in the 7200 block of Sunset Place on Sept. 29, sometime during the day or evening, by breaking out the glass on a sliding glass door. Stereo equipment and jewelry were reported stolen.

On Oct. 4 an apartment in the 6200 block of Springhill Court was entered during the afternoon with no sign of forced entry. Stereo equipment, television, VCR and jewelry were reported stolen.

Cash was taken from an office near Roosevelt Center. There was no sign of forced entry.

Vehicles: Stolen, Recovered

A number of cars were stolen or recovered during the past week. A 1981 Pontiac was stolen Sept. 29 from the 100 block of Westway and later recovered by the owner in the 30 court of Ridge Rd. No damage to the vehicle was reported.

A 1986 black Pontiac Trans Am, MD tags NRA 625, was taken on Oct. 1 from the 9100 block of Springhill Lane.

A 1988 white Pontiac Sunbird convertible was taken Oct. 2 from the 9000 block of Edmonston Road and recovered the same day in Landover. No arrests were made.

A white 1989 Chrysler LeBaron convertible, MD tags PVN 802, was taken from the 9200 block of Springhill Lane.

A 1989 Dodge Ram van, reported stolen on Sept. 26 from the 6000 block of Greenbelt Rd., was recovered on a ramp between Kenilworth Avenue and the Capital Beltway. No arrests were made.

A 1987 Toyota 4-runner reported stolen on Sept. 19 from the 7500 block of Greenway Center Dr., was recovered just off the Baltimore Beltway in a ravine. No arrests were made.

A gold 1987 Honda Accord LX, 4-door, MD tags RHX-934, was stolen from the 7500 block of Mandan Rd. on Oct. 3.

Cooperative Main Street

Downtown, uptown, across town — from county to county, state to state and all across the nation — cooperatives play an important role in helping their communities thrive.

In urban areas, the suburbs, small towns and rural communities there are 45,000 cooperative organizations that serve 90 million people. These co-ops, owned and operated by their members, provide a wide range of goods and services that benefit their friends, neighbors and communities.

There are co-ops for electric and telephone service, credit unions, farm marketing and farm supply, insurance, health and day care, farm credit, housing, florists and news services. In fact, there could be a co-op for anything and anywhere people need to get things done both economically and efficiently.

Look around your neighborhood and community — no doubt you'll find a co-op or two working hard to provide important services that benefit everyone. Building communities the cooperative way benefits the entire nation!

October is Co-op Month.

Lively Discussion Held On Clothing of the 1930's

by Sandra Barnes

The Friends of the Greenbelt Museum recently sponsored a lecture on "Clothing of the 1930's" at the Greenbelt library. Jo Paoletti, an associate professor of the school of textiles and design at the University of Maryland, led a lively discussion which captured the lifestyle of the period.

The personal experiences of many members of the audience who lived during the post-Depression days proved a highlight of the evening. Pearl Siegel recalled that her family was reasonably well-clothed during that period. They lived in New York where her father worked in a clothing factory. After normal working hours ended, he was permitted to make clothes for his children.

Another woman reminisced about the price of material. "Percale cost 5 cents a yard and eyelet was 10 cents a yard. I could make a lovely pinafore for about 25 cents," she said. She also remembered making mother and daughter dresses and specially designed maternity clothes. Since pregnant women did not venture out of the house once they began "to show," maternity clothes were not readily available.

Mary Linstrom remembers being very stylishly dressed in a redingote—a woman's lightweight coat, open at the front, that covered a matching dress.

In the late 1930s and early 1940's, fabric was difficult to obtain because many domestic goods were being used for war materials. Paoletti commented that Congress passed legislation severely limiting new styles and colors that manufacturers could produce in a given year. This meant that people wore their clothing longer since they didn't go out of style. While the consumer apparently saved money, the prohibition had an inhibiting effect on the fashion industry, particularly on creativity in design.

Another person fondly remembered flour sack dresses. Her county home extension agent gave sewing lessons on how to convert men's suits and coats for children's coats. Since World War II lasted longer than some thought, many men wore out their remaining clothing before men's suits and coats became readily available again. During this period, Paoletti explained, the cuffs on men's pants were often cut off and the material reprocessed for uniforms or blankets.

Another person remembered fondly flour sack dresses. Her mother collected same pattern flour sacks to have enough material to make dresses for her children.

In the slide presentation, Paoletti showed a page from a 1930s Sears catalog for children's costumes. A Buck Rogers costume sold for $2.98, while an Indian time.

Paoletti also commented on the story that hemlines mirror the state of the economy. Many people think that in good economic times, women's hemlines go up and in bad times, they go down. History reveals that this story was created as a whimsical piece by a New York Times reporter around the turn of the century. However, it was picked up by a number of newspapers around the country, widely reported as "scientific," and believed by many for decades afterwards.

Paoletti is part of the research team that has worked on the new exhibit at the National Museum of American History, "Men and Women: A History of Costume, Gender and Power," through December.

FOGM is interested in hearing from other persons who may have personal recollections of clothing of the 1930s and 1940s. Anyone who would like to share these with others is asked to write them down and send them to FOGM, P.O. Box 1025, Greenbelt, Md. 20770. Also, FOGM does accept donations of period clothing for the Greenbelt Museum, at 10-B Crescent Road. Museum hours are 1-4 p.m., Sundays, and donations may be brought to the Museum during those hours.

Museum Activities

The Museum received a bequest from the estate of Bob Dove who was an early Greenbelt resident and died recently. The Museum shared with another non-profit group in a $5,000 insurance policy. Bequests to the museum can be made to the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM).

FOGM volunteers are looking forward to the holidays and decorating the house with seasonal displays. Anyone who may have a photograph of a feather tree is asked to call the Museum at 345-1936, or Mary Linstrom at 474-7951. Feather trees were apparently used in the 1930s as Christmas decorations. Recent donations to the Museum collection include Depression glass by Mary Griffin, and a rag rug donated by Ruth Dungan. The rug is in need of repair, and a volunteer is needed who would be able to restore it.

County Plan to Expand Library Program Gets Kick off in City

by Barbara Likowski

County executive Parris Glendening announced a $25 million expansion program for county libraries at a press conference held in the Greenbelt Library on Wednesday, September 20. The program will extend for six years from fiscal year 1991 to 1996.

Glendening commented that the Greenbelt library was a fitting place to hold the conference because Greenbelt is undergoing the "type of transformation we are talking about." Up to $170,000 has been spent on the Greenbelt library so far. Extensive interior work has been done, new carpeting, shelving/tables, etc. supplied, and glass atrium for quiet reading. A further $338,000 will be spent on the Greenbelt library for a new roof and landscaping.

Under Glendening's 6-year Capital Improvement Plan, two new libraries would be built in Largo Kettering and Glenn Dale, enlarging the system to 23 libraries. The Laurel library will be expanded and the Upper Marlboro library moved to a larger site. Also a new bookmobile will be purchased for citizens of southern Prince Georges County.

Under the plan all libraries will be enhanced and a variety of technological services implemented. A computer program would give residents access to the resources of the county libraries from home and office computers. Currently there are seven personal computer centers with 21 personal computers (including a center in the Greenbelt branch). Under this program it is hoped that this number will be doubled. Computer equipment is leased so that it can be easily updated with no large outlay for replacement.

Libraries will be designed with the neighborhoods in mind, Glendening explained, so that they will be assets to the communities, more friendly and inviting. One percent of construction costs will go to art, both inside and outside the buildings. He backed up this statement by showing a rendering of a conceptual design for a new library. He used charts to illustrate his other points.

Glendening boasted that the Prince Georges County library system is recognized nationally for such things as its business information fair. It has the largest audio-visual library in the state. New programs recently initiated are the Wee Care program, which provides library services to family day care homes, and the talking book center for the visually impaired.

Last year circulation in the library was 5.3 million (up 43% in the last five years) with another 2.1 million usage in the libraries. When the library system began to operate in 1945, the county population was 127,000, and "we are now a county of over 700,000," he said.

A $16 million bond package, which must first be approved by the voters, would pay for the expansion. Glendening is optimistic that the bill will pass. When asked whether salaries of library staff will be increased, he said that there was clearly a need for expansion in the operating budget to keep up with the expanding facilities.

Listening To Your Body's Language

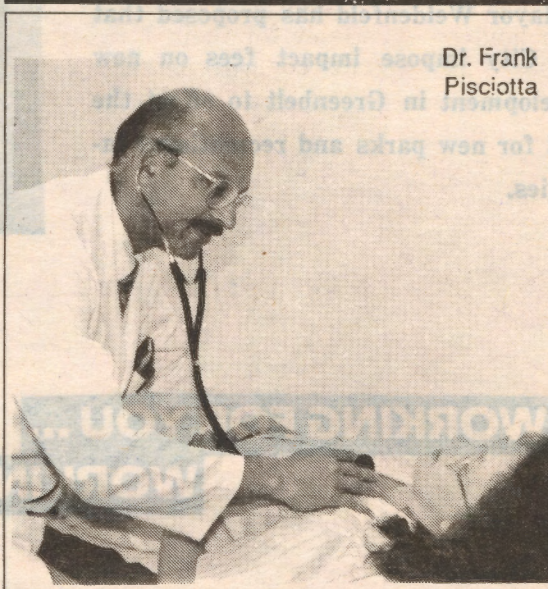

The human body is often likened to a machine, but there is no other machine that functions so effectively and efficiently. Even the seemingly simple act of eating requires enormous coordination of systems within. When something goes wrong, the body often sends out signals to warn us.

According to Dr. Frank Pisciotta, symptoms are the body's way of telling us that something needs attention. He states, "There are many signs that can give one a head start on potentially serious medical problems. The key is to be aware of what your body is trying to tell you."

"Common-sense preventive measures are extremely important to one's health. Eat slowly and chew your food well. Have plenty of high-fiber foods in your diet, drink alcohol only in moderation, don't smoke cigarettes and be aware of changes. If you have doubts, don't take chances. See your doctor. Ignoring symptoms for long periods of time may wind up to be very costly in terms of your health. Listen when your body talks to you."

Greenbelt CARES Council and FOP Play Ball Against Drugs

Paul Fischetti and Carol Leventhal attended a day-long workshop on cults recently, sponsored by Maryland Association of Youth Services Bureaus at the Juvenile Services Regional offices in Ellicott City.

CARES received a certificate honoring their work with tutoring from the International Reading Association and the Prince Georges Council, "for services in the promotion of literacy."

Judye Hering held the first tutor's workshop of the 1989-90 academic year. Nine tutors attended. Discussion included the role of the tutor, resources and responsibilities, and expectations.

Beth Moses is a new volunteer counselor. She is currently enrolled in Catholic University's doctoral program in Clinical Psychology. For the past two years, she has been a Research Associate with the Marriage and Family Studies Group and is involved in a project that is examining how families adapt to parental illness.

An average of 19 families a week participated in regular, scheduled counseling during September. Forty-one individuals were involved, 38% of them children and youth under 18 years of age. Weekly tutoring sessions in reading math and English were provided to 26 students.

CARES has two new volunteer counselors for the Wednesday night Family Clinic.

Traci Brossart is in the master's program at the University of Maryland and will be working as an intern at CARES for the next two semesters.

The Mayor and Council of Greenbelt joined forces with Maryland Governor William D. Shafer, Prince Georges Executive Parris Glendening and the Maryland Alliance to Prevent Substance Abuse by declaring the week of October 22-29 Maryland Red Ribbon Campaign for a Drug Free Community.

The Greenbelt Crime Prevention Committee will kickoff the city-wide campaign on Saturday, October 21 at 4:30 p.m. at Braden Field. The Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police softball team will play against a team headed by the mayor, council and celebrities. Refreshments will be served to those attending the game.

Greenbelt Center school has also arranged for a poster contest with prizes for the winning contestants. Red ribbons will be distributed throughout the city for front doorways, automobile antennas, and windows as a clear message that drug dealers and drug abusers will not be tolerated within the community.

Milone and Austin are developing an Adolescent Addictions Program in which Austin will spend one day each week evaluating and counseling at-risk students at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Sucher Publishes Her Second Novel

Greenbelt's celebrated mystery writer, Dorothy Sucher of Lakeside Drive, has written her second novel, Dead Men Don't Marry. This is the sequel to her first novel, Dead Men Don't Give Seminars. Both books feature the unconventional team of Sabina Swift, owner of a detective agency and her associate P. I. Victor Newman, who use wit and intelligence to solve unusual crimes.

In the latest novel, Vic Newman gets a shock when he arrives home after a long absence and finds an invitation to the wedding of his neighbor. He then learns that he has not only missed his neighbor's wedding, but also her funeral. She has died in an "accident" after a train struck her car at a grade crossing.

Sucher will appear at a book signing on Sunday, Oct. 15, 2-4 p.m. at the "Rogue's Gallery" mystery bookstore, 4934 Elm Street, Bethesda. A second book signing will be held on Thursday, November 9 from 4-6 p.m. at a mystery tea with crumpets at "The Butler Did It" book store in Baltimore.

Another book signing will be held on Thursday, November 16, 7 p.m., at the "Politics and Prose Bookstore," 5015 Connecticut Avenue, N.W.

In addition to being a former editor of the Greenbelt News Review, Sucher has worked as a psychotherapist and is the mother of four children.

Sucher has just returned from The Boucheron, a convention of mystery fans that many writers attend. She was elected treasurer of Sisters in Crime, an organization of women in the mystery field.

THE CITIZENS FOR GREENBELT'S
"CANDIDATE'S NIGHT"

Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
October 17, 18, & 19
2 & 7 p.m.

See how the candidates stand on the issues.

We look more and more like any other suburb and it's time to get back on the right track.

To Manage our Growth I propose the following steps and approaches to be taken.

1. Establish a Department of Planning.

Our City Development and Planning Coordinator has done an excellent job. But asking one planner to handle the myriad of complex concerns is most unfair—both to the city's planner and to the City as a whole. To say our town has grown is stating the obvious. It is equally obvious that our resources have to catch up if we are going to have any meaningful say in the future of Greenbelt.

In order to lobby more effectively with the County, a department of planning will make it easier to define our goals and very importantly, to design options which we will support. For example, with adequate planning resources, we could be designing options for the new metro site with respect to future development there. We could then build a consensus community-wide before the County presents us with its version. We must be ahead of the County if we are to effectively lobby for our positions.

2. Develop Alternatives to the Car in getting back and forth to the New Metro site.

If you think traffic is bad now, it will be worse in 1993. With the advent of Metro, 30,000 to 40,000 passengers a day will be making use of the subway. Many of these riders will be coming from outside of Greenbelt. It is imperative that we work now to secure the financing and design necessary for frequent bus-service, and to seriously consider other options such as an overpass from original Greenbelt to the metro site for bicyclists and pedestrians. Equally as important, we must work with the entire region to reduce the traffic count coming from outside of Greenbelt.

3. The city should look into the possibility of transferring the development rights of prospective developers such as Sunrise Properties to other land more suitable for their respective proposed uses. The concept of transferring development rights is employed elsewhere throughout the Country to preserve open space and farm land and should be considered here.

4. A full commitment to preserving open space as open space should be an integral element to a growth management policy. Preserving such open space should be pursued with as much vigor as those who preserved the Manassas Battlefield two years ago. While many may see this issue now as something "taken care of", we all must be mindful that the jury in January of next year may deem the value of Parcel 1 at a higher value than that for which the City has committed funds. We must be ready for that contingency.

5. Finally, we should take a leadership role in establishing common environmental and growth management values throughout the county. The objective is to make it politically attractive for the other eight County Councilmembers to support proposals which would result in balanced, rational growth management. This type of coalition effort can succeed. All one needs to refer to is the successful effort to block the County's proposed incinerator in 1988. That, believe me, was a County-wide effort.

We must be committed to applying newtown principles, upon which our city was founded, the Greenbelt of the 1990s and beyond. I pledge to all of you the effort and energy needed to help make this happen, knowing that our city can only work best, when we work together.

Hikers Find Healthy Streams Are Threatened by Erosion

by Betsy Likowski

The guide waded out into Beaver Dam Creek, picked up a small log and brought it back to shore. Turning it over he showed an eager audience that he had found what he had been searching for—insects. Proof that the creek was in good health.

The guide was Mike Tolker of the Anacostia Watershed Restoration Project of the Interstate Commission of the Potomac River Basin. He led members of the sponsoring group, the Committee to Save the Green Belt, and other interested persons on Saturday, September 30 on a stream walk of some of the streams found in Greenbelt's woods east of Ridge Road.

Tolker led the tour through the bright sunny woodlands touched by the signs of early autumn. The bounty of nature's autumn harvest was waiting to be eaten by the inhabitants of the woods. Acorns were strewn on the ground and the scarlet berries of dogwood and hearts-a-bustin-with-love euonymus could be seen.

trees with exposed roots. The damage of erosion was especially obvious where the stream goes under the fence at the boundary of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. There were piles of sediments that had washed down from the trail, which was visibly eroded at that point.

What could individuals do to help the stream, we asked. Tolker told us that individuals could create sediment barriers at heavily eroded spots, such as logs staked into place, to slow down rain runoff and stop sediments from going into the stream.

Building a settling pond near Ridge Road to capture storm water and let the silt settle out would be a project a local government would have to do, Tolker said. A pond would stop charge area. The water soaks into the porous soil, pollutants are filtered out, and the water comes out of the ground as clear, cold springs. It is important that the streams leading into the Anacostia River and eventually into the Chesapeake Bay be of high quality so as not to worsen the water quality downstream.

A couple of simple experiments showed some of these principles. At several spots we stopped to pound a stake into the ground to make a hole, then pour a quart of water into a section of a pipe stuck into the hole to see how quickly the ground would absorb the water. In the packed-down soil of the trail, the water was not absorbed at all; in the low-lying area under some bushes it took over seven minutes for the quart of water to be absorbed; but all of the water was quickly absorbed in the woodland above the stream.

And it took 13 whacks to pound a stake into the ground in the low-lying spot, but only five in the woodland spot. This showed how rain water is absorbed in the woodland and softens the soil, Tolker explained, but in open areas and on pavement rain runs off and creates erosion.

At the BARC fence we left the stream and followed the perimeter trail along the fence through oak fence. The fence suddenly veered off to the left and we were standing in the creek bottom land of Beaver Dam Creek. The land was low and the creek meandered across the bottom land in several channels. On our right, the land rose up gradually and was heavily forested with plants of every type and size: trees, shrubs, ground cover. On our left, in the wet land, the Tulip Poplars towered above us in open woodland with few medium-sized trees or shrubs — just grasses. Tolker told us that this indicated that the area was often flooded.

It was here in Beaver Dam Creek that Tolker found the insects under the log. Although this indicated the creek water quality was good enough to support a variety of life, the character of the stream bed indicated it had been affected by development.

Upstream are the Northway ball fields, site of a landfill that was in active use for decades until the early 1970's. Tolker speculated that the sediment eroding off the landfill covered up the old creek bed. The old landfill will continue to affect the creek as substances leach out.

The path soon left the creek side and we made our way back through sunlit woods to Plateau Place and civilization.

This was more than a walk down well-worn familiar paths; it was an opportunity to learn facts about the streams in our woods.

The walk began at the rain-water culvert next to 58 court of Ridge Road, the start of a little stream, and headed east on the main path beside the stream. We were in the stream valley between Plateau Place and Laurel Hill Road. As we walked, Tolker told us some woodland lore, like how the Indians made canoes out of the tall, straight Tulip Poplar trees. He demonstrated how they made rope out of the fibers of the inner bark of the same tree. He pointed out that this was rich bottom land and could have been farmed at one time.

After a few minutes the stream bed suddenly became a deep gully and continued this way as far as we followed it. Tolker guessed we were looking at the effects of erosion. When the land was cleared, large amounts of water would come through the stream after a heavy rain storm. The unconsolidated clays and sand that make up soil in this region are soft and would wash away easily. We could see piles of iron ore rocks in the stream bed ranging in size from pebbles to rocks a couple of feet across.

The erosion continues, Tolker said, and pointed out spots where the trail was dangerously close to the edge of the bank and those surges of water that rush down the stream after heavy rain storms.

These storm surges limit the amount and type of life that can live in the stream, he explained, because many fishes need pebbles in which to lay their eggs and these storm surges wash away the eggs. It was his opinion that the stream water quality was good enough to support many different kinds of life, including a little green frog he caught and showed to us.

As we walked Tolker explained that the woodland is a re-

COMMUNITY CENTER TASK FORCE

On June 27, 1989, citizens of Greenbelt approved $3 million in bonds to finance a community center and expressed preference for establishing such a community center at Center School.

Council has established a Community Center Task Force to be responsible for the development of a plan and guidelines for the reutilization of Center School as a community center after it is transferred to the city. This shall include the allocation of space to various special uses and activities.

The task force shall consist of six citizen members, preferably some with background in architecture and historic preservation, and from the business community. In addition to the six citizen members, the task force shall include one representative each of the city's Advisory Planning Board, Park and Recreation Advisory Board, Community Relations Advisory Board, Greenbelt Arts Advisory Committee, and the Senior Citizen Task Force. The Community Center Task Force shall:

- 1) Review and consider the evolution of the community center idea from its inception in the early 1980s, including concept plans, use proposals, surveys, and community needs.
 - 2) Evaluate the need to preserve the architectural integrity of the Center School building which is listed in the Register of Historic Places, as well as the relationship of the use of the building to the original Greenbelt town plan as relates to the reutilization of the building.
 - 3) Conduct public meetings to solicit public input on the community center idea.
 - 4) Prepare a report to the City Council recommending a usage plan for the community center.
- Citizens who wish to serve on this task force are encouraged to contact the City Clerk, 474-3870.

Shrubbery is Becoming A Perennial Issue

by Mary Moien

At the September 21 meeting of the Greenbelt Homes Inc. (GHI) board of directors, John Taylor, long-term member of the Nominations and Elections Committee, became the second new board member appointed in as many weeks. He fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Suzanne Zappasodi (At the meeting on September 14, Diane Leibscher replaced Andrea Haslinger on the board.) Also at the meeting, congratulations and thanks were offered to Ronald Colton who is celebrating his fifth anniversary as manager of the corporation.

Garage Leasing

The rental garage leasing priorities were at issue as a conflict had arisen between the rights of a newcomer to a court with garages and the rights of a couple who have rented a garage there for several decades but who do not live in the court. The priorities state that "garages leased to members outside of the court . . . shall be terminated upon thirty days notice for any member requesting a first garage in their court of residence." The couple had received a termination notice and appealed the decision. As both members have medical problems, the situation had no easy answer. The board, while agreeing that the regulations are clear, requested management to see if an alternative garage space could be located for the elderly couple who would be displaced. A final decision will be made at a future meeting.

Hedges and Shrubs

The board had asked the Architecture and Environment Committee to clarify a proposed regulation dealing with boundary plantings. The reworded proposal was presented. It states, "Hedges and shrubs which form, in part or in whole, a boundary between neighboring yards may not be removed except by mutual consent of the adjacent member(s). Such hedges or shrubs bordering walkways or other common areas may not be removed without written permission of GHI." The report was accepted by the board and will be discussed at a future meeting.

Vinyl Siding

During rehab, eight-inch vinyl siding was installed on the frame homes using seven colors. Only four of these colors are still being manufactured - cream, tan, gray, and white. Blue, green, and gold siding cannot be found in the eight-inch siding. In some cases, a narrower-look shingle can be found in the correct color. Board and management discussed how much siding to keep in stock how to replace siding that is damaged when matching siding is no longer available, and how to handle additions. Management and board are still discussing various options.

County Schools to Hold Substitute Workshop

Persons interested in substitute teaching in the public schools of Prince Georges County are invited to participate in a one-day substitute workshop. The workshop will be held on Monday, October 23 and repeated on Monday, October 30. Each workshop is scheduled from 8:30 a.m.

to 4 p.m. and applicants may choose which day they wish to attend.

The workshops will be held at the William Paca Instructional Services/Staff Development Center, 7801 Sheriff Road, Landover. An overview of the responsibilities and related school policies that affect substitute teachers will be provided. In addition, the elementary, middle and high school curriculum will be presented as well as successful classroom management techniques and effective teaching strategies.

To register contact Edith Greene at William Paca 386-1529..

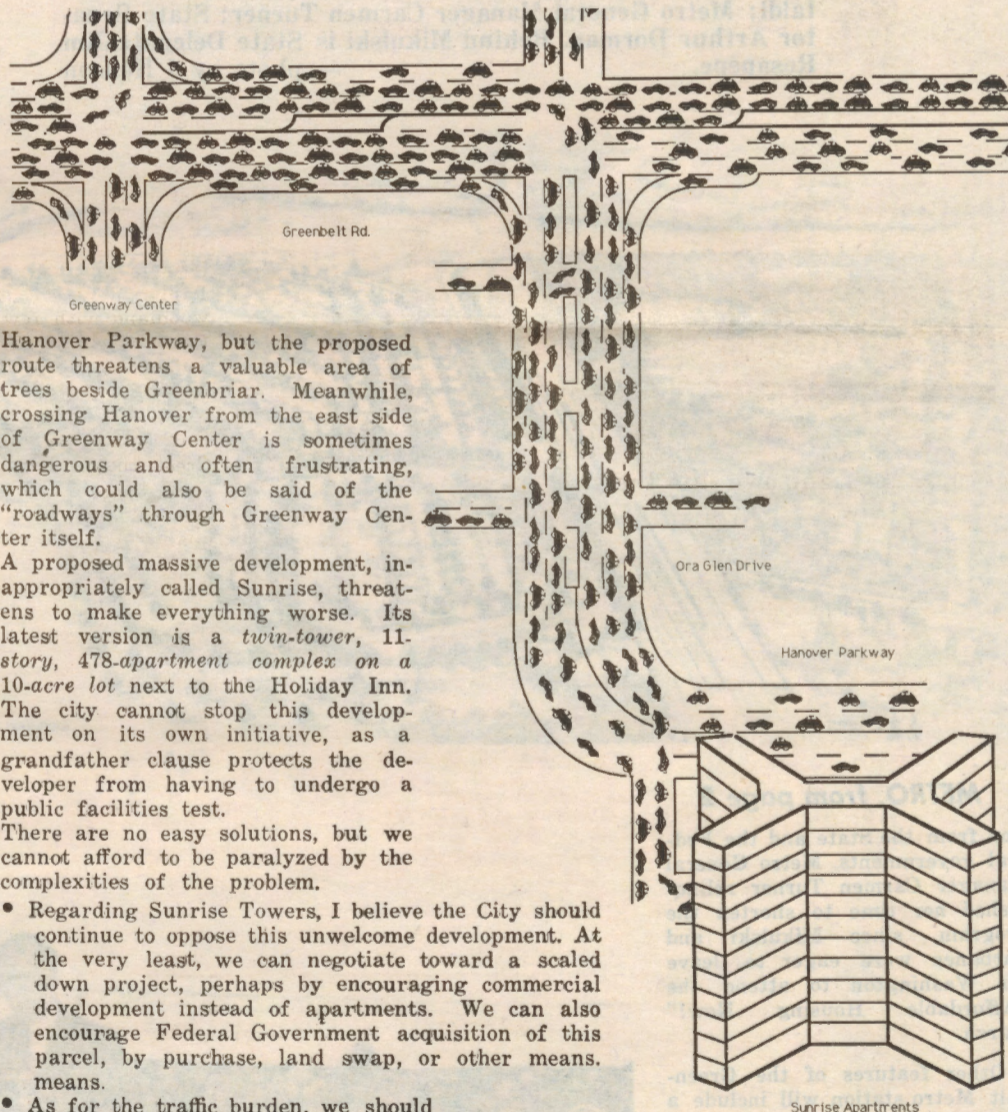

DR. GRIDLOCK, TAKE NOTICE

It is both our good fortune and misfortune to be located along some of the major highways in the D.C. area. This location makes us more attractive to business, which helps the tax base. On the down side, it creates physical barriers to divide us (BW Parkway on the east, Kenilworth Avenue on the west, plus the beloved Beltway). It also causes traffic problems — big traffic problems.

Let's concede that the traffic problems are getting worse. The change is detectable in many parts of the City, but especially at and near the intersection of Greenbelt Road and Hanover Parkway. Local residents turning left from Hanover onto Greenbelt Road must often wait through two (sometimes three) changes of the traffic light, after which there is another light in front of the Greenway Center.

Some improvements are underway or planned, but the results will be somewhat mixed. Greenbelt Road is being widened, but this will also encourage more people to use it, especially if Kenilworth Avenue becomes the route to the planned Inter-County Connector. The exit from the Parkway to Greenbelt Road will be re-routed to come out closer to Hanover Parkway, but the proposed route threatens a valuable area of trees beside Greenbriar. Meanwhile, crossing Hanover from the east side of Greenway Center is sometimes dangerous and often frustrating, which could also be said of the "roadways" through Greenway Center itself.

A proposed massive development, inappropriately called Sunrise, threatens to make everything worse. Its latest version is a twin-tower, 11-story, 478-apartment complex on a 10-acre lot next to the Holiday Inn. The city cannot stop this development on its own initiative, as a grandfather clause protects the developer from having to undergo a public facilities test.

There are no easy solutions, but we cannot afford to be paralyzed by the complexities of the problem.

- Regarding Sunrise Towers, I believe the City should continue to oppose this unwelcome development. At the very least, we can negotiate toward a scaled down project, perhaps by encouraging commercial development instead of apartments. We can also encourage Federal Government acquisition of this parcel, by purchase, land swap, or other means.
- As for the traffic burden, we should
 - Study the traffic patterns going into, out of, and through Greenway Center. There must be a better system than this.
 - Evaluate the previous County proposal to create an opening in Greenway Center, which would allow pedestrian access from the back side of the building and create more accessible parking on the back side.
 - Ask the Federal Government to coordinate with us regarding their new Parkway exit/entrance plans, and also insist that all trees be replaced.
 - Use the City's own traffic study data, not developers' data, to properly predict the impact of any development on any intersection in the City. This study is being considered by City Staff and the Council based on my proposal.
- Finally, the City Council should support pending County legislation requiring that existing roads be proven adequate or road improvements be in place before any new development is approved by the County. Such a law might protect us from gridlock in Greenbelt East and other parts of the City.

Other features of the Greenbelt Metro station will include a center platform to be constructed on an embankment with a mezzanine for fare collection, information, telephones and the station manager's kiosk. Bus bays, kiss and ride spaces, carpool and motorcycle spaces will be located near the station entrance. Approximately 3400 all-day automobile parking spaces will be provided. The station will connect to the Red Line at Fort Totten until the Columbia Heights and Georgia Avenue-Petworth Green Line stations are built.

The station was designed by Greenhorne and O'Mara, Inc., of Greenbelt, with assistance from Progressive Engineering, Laurel.

Congressman Steny Hoyer congratulates all those who worked so hard and long to reach this historic moment of the groundbreaking for Greenbelt's Metro line. Nat. Guard Awareness Day 8K Run Winners

September 17 saw the running of the National Guard Awareness Day 8K. 51 runners participated, 15 women and 36 men. The men's overall winner was Kevin Beares in a time of 27:37 while the women's crown went to Nancy Gugerty who turned in a time of 32:05. Second place in her age category went to Greenbelter Adrienne Szafran, who also placed third overall among the women. Ray McCawley, another Greenbelter, placed 4th in his age group.

FUN FAIR AT MAGNOLIA

The Magnolia Elementary P.T.O. will hold a School Fun Fair on Saturday, October 21 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be games, prizes, clowns, balloons, moonwalk and food. Magnolia Elementary School, attended by some children from Greenbelt East, is located at 8400 Nightingale Drive in Lanham.

Volunteers Needed

The Unity Group, Inc., an advocacy group for battered women and their children, needs volunteers for their Prince Georges County chapter. Unity needs volunteers who can work with battered women on an individual basis as well as with the issue in whole.

The Unity group was founded and obtained its 501 (C) (3) ruling in 1987. The group was formed to help battered women with practical needs such as housing, daycare, and job location. Unity not only works with victims, but does a great deal on the local, state and federal level to bring about much needed changes in the legal system.

Anyone interested in volunteering should contact the Unity Group at 937-5266.

Audubon Birdseed Sale

The Audubon Society will hold a benefit wild birdseed sale on Oct. 14 and 15: 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. The pickup site will be at the BWI Airport Limo parking lot. Call 652-5964 for details.

Gallery Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed to work in The Gallery at the Greenbelt Library, Monday through Thursday, 2-8 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, 2-5 p.m. Interested persons should contact Phillipa Malone, Volunteer Services, at 699-3500.

The recently opened gallery will showcase a variety of media by artists throughout Prince Georges County.

Fire Safety Checks

The Prince Georges Fire Department is offering free home fire safety inspections through a program called "Operation Safe Families."

Inspections will be made by trained fire department personnel, for any citizen who requests an inspection for their home.

Free smoke detectors will be provided to homes that do not have one upon the request of the owner.

For more information, or to request an inspection, call 864-SAFE.

Attention Prospective Home Buyers

Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI), one of the largest and most established housing cooperatives in the country, is offering brief and informative presentations designed to introduce GHI to you. The presentation will explain what a cooperative is, how GHI operates, what services are provided to GHI members under the monthly charges, and the financing sources which are available. This information will be useful to you whether or not you purchase a GHI home. This is an ideal opportunity for persons who are considering homeownership to learn about GHI and to ask questions in a relaxed atmosphere. Let us introduce you to the cooperative lifestyle BEFORE you look for a home. The next presentations will be held on:

Wednesday, October 18	7:15 p.m.
Saturday, October 28	11:00 a.m.
Tuesday, November 7	7:15 pm.

Please call Louise at 474-4161 for reservations and information. The sessions are free, and there is no obligation.

GREENBELT HOMES, INC.

Hamilton Place
Greenbelt, Maryland 20770

by Dorrie Bates, 345-5961

Finally fall is in the air! Time for everyone to start bundling up, especially our newest neighbors who include Michael Fagella Baumbach. Michael was born at Holy Cross Hospital on September 11 and weighed 8 lbs 10 ozs. Proud parents are Pamela and Paul Baumbach of Morrison Drive.

Janet and Gary Tevis are pleased to announce the birth of their daughter Ashley Nicole Tevis. Young Ashley was born on September 16 at Holy Cross, weighing 8 lbs 11 ozs. She joins a brother Jason, 3, at home on Hanover Parkway.

There's a new little one on Forestway. Kelly Elena Dugan was born on September 23 to Angie and Michael Dugan. She weighed 9 lbs 7½ ozs upon arrival at Holy Cross Hospital. Big brother Sean is sure to be a big help as Kelly gets settled.

Lendriani and Rizal Zein have another one at home now. Ricky Rizal Zein was born on September 15 at Holy Cross. Ricky weighed 8 lbs 11 ozs at birth and joins his family on Ora Court.

Rachel Genevieve Mulkey made her appearance at Holy Cross Hospital on September 21. She weighed 6 lbs 2 ozs. Waiting for her at home in the 55 Court of Ridge were parents Linda and John Mulkey, sister Samantha and brother Tension. Linda Mulkey is on the board of the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club.

Kelly and Thomas Burns are celebrating the birth of their first child, Stephanie Kristen Burns. Stephanie was born on September 13 at Holy Cross and weighed 9 lbs. 15 ozs. The family Burns live on Edmonston Road.

And finally, we hear that former Greenbelter Anne Ricciuti Law and her husband Jack had a little girl recently. Stephanie Rose Law was born at Holy Cross on September 12. She weighed 9 lbs 4½ ozs. The Laws now live in Frederick, Md. Welcome all!

Congratulations are in order for Greenbelter Lisa Carpenter Baldwin who was recently awarded the Lyle Mamer Fellowship Award. The award was given in connection with Lisa's graduate work in consumer economics at the University of Maryland. No stranger to honors, Lisa was named one of Good Housekeeping's 100 outstanding Graduating College Women in 1987.

Ted Kliman, a longtime Greenbelt resident and artist, has been selected to show his work in the "Prince Georges County Juried Exhibition." The exhibition features paintings, drawings, prints and photographs by eighteen artists who live, work or go to school in PG County. The artwork will be on display at the newly opened Harmony Hall Regional Center Gallery in Fort Washington through November 2.

Former Greenbelter Veda Ward has been reappointed by County Executive Parris Glendening to the county's Park and Recreation Advisory Board. She was also recently elected to the Roundtable Associates, Inc. a national organization of minority professionals in recreation, parks and conservation. Congratulations, Veda.

Speaking of appointments, County Councilman Richard Castaldi has been named one of two vice-chairs of COG's Transportation Planning Board.

Moon-Whoan Rhee has been appointed assistant professor of finance at Towson State University. In addition to his teaching duties, Rhee is also completing his PhD at the University of Maryland. Sounds like a full schedule to me, professor.

Other news from the halls of academia includes word that Chuck Hess of Laurel Hill was recently awarded a M.S. from American University. Chuck is on the board of GHI.

Try the Library

The Greenbelt Library will hold programs for two age groups. For adults, there will be a book discussion on Wednesday, October 18 concerning Walker Percy's 'The Thanatos Syndrome.' The program will start at 10:15 a.m.

On Thursday, October 19, the younger set is invited to Drop-In Storytime. This program, which features stories, filmstrips and music, is pitched for 3 to 5 year olds and will start at 10:30 a.m.

The library will be open Sunday afternoons from now until May. For information on these and other library services, call 345-5800.

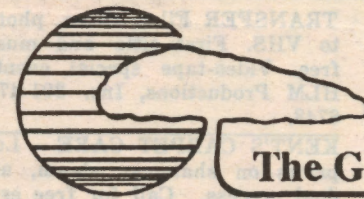

Learn About Local Plants At the First Exploration

On Friday, October 20, the city's horticulturist Bill Phelan will discuss the local plants in Greenbelt and lead a walk around Greenbelt Lake. He will explain how to identify the different types of local plants and will tell some interesting stories including some Indian folk lore. Participants are encouraged to wear comfortable clothes and walking shoes and be able to walk 1.7 miles (from the Youth Center, around the lake and back to the Youth Center.)

Phelan is the first presenter in the Explorations Unlimited program sponsored by the Greenbelt Recreation Department. Although this program is designed for senior citizens, it is not limited to seniors. All are welcome to attend. The program is designed to be fun, uplifting, invigorating and exciting. It is intended to stimulate and help participants grow cognitively, emotionally, and socially.

The program will run for five weeks. Each week a different topic will be presented/discussed: October 20 - Bill Phelan; October 27 - Dr. David Thompson from NASA will take participants on a Guided Tour of the Universe; November 3 - Betty Timer will present Music of the '30's, reminiscing, listening and discussing; November 17 - Poetry will be read and discussed. Participants are encouraged to bring their favorite poems to share; December 1 - An audiologist will talk on hearing impairments. She will also be giving some free hearing screenings.

All programs will take place at the Greenbelt Youth Center and begin at 1 p.m. on Fridays, and last about two hours. Individuals interested in attending any or all of these are asked to call 474-6878 to register.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again:

Well it's time to switch over to the heat mode for those of you who have not done so.

If this is going to be the first time in use since last season, just select the heat mode and maximum blower. You should have good heat provided the engine is warmed up. Here are a few questions we are asked:

First, a damp odor when heat was first turned on. This is normal after sitting all summer with no air movement around the heating core. The core itself gets dusty, and the fan now tends to blow the area clean.

Second, a noise something like a baseball card hitting a spoke wheel. This is more than likely leaves or something that got sucked up into the blower housing. It will diminish in a few seconds and should be O.K. On the other hand the heating core may be leaking. First sign is antifreeze in passenger compartment on the floor. Second sign is interior side of windshield fogging up with moisture and smelling like engine anti-freeze. If this condition exists, the heating core must be replaced.

Till next time
